European and national directives and specifications are constantly expanding, now covering the full range of furniture and wood constructions—not only the final products but also the raw materials used in their manufacture. Products that no longer meet the required specifications are considered illegal and will be prohibited from entering the market.

Manufacturers in the furniture and wood construction sector must be promptly informed and begin complying with these guidelines. Rather than viewing them as obstacles, these regulations should be embraced as tools to improve production quality, boost exports, and increase business profitability.
